

FORWARD MARQUETTE

HEALTH CARE TODAY - FROM POLITICS TO PATIENT CARE WEDNESDAY, SEPT 12

Janet Wessel Krejci, Ph.D., RN, NEA-BC, is dean of the Marquette University College of Nursing. She joined Marquette after serving as vice president for academic affairs and provost at Illinois State University. Prior to her role as provost, Dr. Krejci was dean and professor of nursing at Illinois State's Mennonite College of Nursing from 2009–14. Previously, she spent 21 years in Marquette's College of Nursing in roles ranging from research assistant to associate dean. Krejci earned her bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees in nursing from the University of Wisconsin – Milwaukee.

Lisa Grabert, MPH, is currently research faculty at Marquette University in Milwaukee and Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. In addition to teaching policy to graduate students at both universities, Grabert researches quality and cost issues in the Medicare program with an emphasis on hospital, nursing home and home health issues. Prior to her role as faculty, Grabert was a senior aide for the U.S. Representatives House Ways and Means Committee for Chairman Kevin Brady, Paul Ryan and Dave Camp. Grabert earned a masters in public health with an emphasis in health policy and management from Emory University in Atlanta and a bachelor of science degree with an emphasis in biochemistry and communication arts from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Abiola Keller, PA-C, MPH, Ph.D. is an assistant professor in the College of Nursing at Marquette University. Dr. Keller's research efforts focus on depression, medication adherence, and chronic disease management with particular interests in health disparities and health equity. Dr. Keller teaches the undergraduate Culture and Health course and graduate-level Epidemiology course. She also holds an assistant adjunct professor appointment in the Clinical and Translational Science Institute at the Medical College of Wisconsin. Dr. Keller received her Ph.D. in population health sciences and master of public health degrees from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. In addition, she holds a master of physician assistant studies degree from the University of Iowa. She completed her undergraduate studies in biomedical sciences at Marquette University.

MARQUETTE
UNIVERSITY

BE THE DIFFERENCE.

MARQUETTE
UNIVERSITY

BE THE DIFFERENCE.